

AL COPLAND TO TRAIN AUSTRIAN OLYMPIC TEAM--NICKEL PLATE SOLD TO MISSOURIAN FOR $1,425

AL COPLAND GOES TO AUSTRIA AS TRAINER

To Instruct Austrian Athletes for Olympic Games at Berlin in 1916.

THIRD YANKEE SO HONORED

Former Coach of Princeton and Yale Follows Hjertberg and Kraenzlein.

Special Cable Dispatch to The Sun.

VIENNA, Nov. 24.—The selection of A. P. Copland as the trainer of the Austrian athletes for the next Olympic games at Berlin in 1916 has been approved by the members of the Austrian Olympic committee.

Copland is the third American chosen to instruct foreign athletic teams, Ernie Hjertberg having been chosen to go to Sweden to prepare the men there for the last Olympic games.

There is no man in America with a wider knowledge of practical athletics than Copland, and, though a newspaper man, he has broken away from his routine duties at times to instruct colleges and athletes with signal success.

He does not go with the idea that he will turn out a winning team at the next Olympics, but rather gradually to build up a formidable organization by the use of American methods.

For thirty years Al Copland has been in the limelight in one capacity or another, and he has shown a keen interest in showing others how to do things has been uniformly successful.

He has been a champion runner for many years, and he has won many titles in the record book as the holder of best figures over the stakes, while at the same time he has won the best performance of American athletes as a broad jumper.

In sprinting Copland, though never holding an American title, was so good that many a champion felt a victim to his speed. He could run and run well any distance from 100 yards to a quarter of a mile.

Copland first became a trainer in 1895, when he had charge of the Yale athletes. He did with them what no other trainer has done, turned out teams which won all three of the championship relay races at the University of Pennsylvania meet.
